What did Jane Goodall love to do as a child?

Jane Goodall loved to watch animals for hours.

Why did Jane move to Gombe?

Jane moved to Gombe because she wanted to learn new things about chimpanzees.

Why do you think the chimps stayed away from Jane at the beginning?

The chimps stayed away from Jane at the beginning because they were afraid of strangers.

"David Greybeard took bananas from my hands!"

Who was David Greybeard?

David Greybeard was first chimp who came close to Jane.

Who gave him that name and why?

Jane gave him that the name 'David Greybeard' because he had grey hair around his chin.

Why was Jane excited about this?

Jane was excited because this was first time a chimp came close to her.

Jane's friends were in danger.

Who were Jane's friends?

Jane's friends were chimpanzees who were living in African forests.

Why were they in danger?

They were in danger because forests were being cut down and chimps and other animals were losing their homes.

What did Jane do about it?

Jane travelled all over the world and asked people for help.

What new things Jane learned about chimps?

Jane learned that chimps could make and use tools. She also learned that chimps ate meat.
